Reviews

The publication is simple in go through preferable to fully grasp. I am quite late in start reading this one, but better then never. It is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding, once you begin to read the book.

Xlibris. Paperback. Book Condition: New. Paperback. 426 pages. Dimensions: 8.5in. x 5.5in. x 1.1in. With her adventure memoir The Last Longhouse Anna Goins adds to the vast and fascinating body of literature by intrepid women travelers originating in the nineteenth century with such figures as Isabelle Eberhardt. What distinguished The Last Longhouse is that its heroine was 62 years of age when she threw over the traces of life as an academic wife to adventure alone and disguised as a man into uncharted Dyak Territory. Gifted with the awareness, and sense of risk derived from her first experiences accompanying her anthropologist husband in his field work in the High Andes, she was able to make contact with the original head hunters of Borneo and live among them observing their traditional way of life to share with us this rare account. Cecile Pineda Author of FACE Winner of the Commonwealth Club Gold Medal Looking for a piece of paradise to allay a childhood memory, a sixty-two year old American widow travels alone into Borneo with a weeks supply of food and a hand-drawn map to make her way up the Mahakam River and into the forbidden territory of the Dyak headhunters. After making arrangements with a Chinese timber contractor to gain passage on an Indonesian launch, Annas trip is officially endorsed by confusion when her travel papers are stamped laki-laki (male) at an Indonesian army checkpoint. No woman is allowed to travel unaccompanied on the Mahakam River. Her unknown destination is Rukun Damai near the Mahakam headwaters, an isolated settlement where the Dyak live communally in traditional longhouses. Anna discovers how fiercely protective these people are of their way of life when she receives an aggressively chilly reception, undoubtedly influenced by her necessary reliance on out-siders to make her way up the...
