Tay Co. 1,000 There was no question in the minds of the committee that the road should be built upon a cash basis. When it was completed and ready for business, there would be no interest charges to make high freight rates a necessity, and every dollar taken in above running expenses could be divided among the shareholders. Such a road would be a competing road in the full sense of the term. Le Roy G. Harvey On February 11th, the draft of the incorporation papers of the San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley Railway was submitted by E. H. Preston to the General Committee of Promoters. After discussion, it was referred to a subcommittee for examination, with instructions to report on it the following day. In the absence of Glaus Spreckels, who was confined to his house with cold,...
